

CONSPIRACY.

Chairman Frick and Associates Indicted.

The Grand Jury, at Pittsburgh, Makes a Sweeping Job of It.

Not Even Overlooking the Pinkerton Detectives—A Verdict Caused by the Report in the Murder Cases—The Strikers Arraigned for Treason.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 12.—The grand jury sitting in the treason cases against the Homestead strikers and the murder and conspiracy charges against H. C. Frick and various other officials of the Carnegie Steel Co. and the Pinkerton detectives, at 5:10 Tuesday afternoon brought in five bills in all the cases.

After the charge to the grand jury yesterday by Chief Justice Paxson in the treason cases it was thought that the murder charges would be postponed, and when the jury reported on them also it came in the nature of a surprise.

Chief Justice Paxson, of the supreme court of the state, and Judge Kennedy, of the county courts, occupied the bench when the jury entered the courtroom.

Foreman Berlin presented the findings, which, after examination by the judges, were handed to the clerk of the courts. The bills against Hugh O'Donnell and others for treason include thirty-one defendants. They are Hugh O'Donnell, John McLaughlin, David Lynch, Thomas J. Crawford, Harry Bayne, Elmer F. Ball, Henry Bayard, J. W. Brown, George Champeno, Isaac Critchell, Miller Colgan, John Coyle, Jack Clifford, Dennis M. Cosh, William M. Connelly, Michael Cummings, William Combs, John Diekin, Patrick Fagan, W. H. Gaches, Matthew Harris, Ried Kennedy, John Miller, G. S. Searight, John Murray, W. H. Thompson, Martin Murray, Hugh Ross, W. T. Roberts, George Reynolds and George W. Sarnes.

The indictments for murder are for the killing of George W. Rutter, John E. Morris, Joseph Sotak and Silas Wain, all strikers, and include H. C. Frick, chairman of the company; E. T. F. Lovejoy, secretary; J. A. Potter, superintendent; J. G. A. Leshman, vice-chairman; W. E. Corey, assistant superintendent; Nevil McConnell and James Dovey, mill bosses, and Robert Pinkerton, William Pinkerton, C. W. Biddell, W. H. Burt, John Cooper and E. W. Hinde, of the Pinkerton Detective agency.

The bills for conspiracy embrace all those charged with murder, with the addition of George Lander, H. M. Curry, Otis Childs, L. C. Phipps, of the steel company, and Fred W. Primer, a detective.

Those charged with aggravated riot are: H. C. Frick, H. M. Curry, J. G. A. Leshman, E. T. F. Lovejoy, L. C. Phipps, J. S. Dovey, Nevil McConnell, John Cooper, C. W. Biddell, Fred Primer, W. H. Burt and E. W. Hinde.

The witnesses, whose names are given by the grand jury as having testified before them, are: Henry Beltzhoover, county detective; Samuel Cluety, deputy sheriff; E. C. Bishop, telegraph operator at Homestead; Henry Lewis, Robert Herbert, C. W. Danziger, E. C. Christie, newspaper correspondents, and Joseph H. Gray, special deputy sheriff. The indictment against the Carnegie officials for murder reads as follows in the case of Silas Wain:

The grand inquest of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania do present: That said defendants (who are named as above), on the 6th day of July, 1892, with force and arms, then and there being, did make an assault on Silas Wain and feloniously, maliciously and of their malice aforethought, did kill and murder, contrary to the form of assembly, and against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The prosecutor in the murder cases is Hugh Ross, against whom there are counter charges of murder, treason, conspiracy and riot. The witnesses for the prosecution were Capt. Kuhn, F. G. Miller, Dr. Barton, Dr. Fogelson, C. E. Marney, W. B. Rodgers, J. H. Gray, Dr. Osburn, Wm. Taylor, Dr. Purman, Dr. McCoslin, J. H. Gillean, Emma Neester and Charles Mansfield.

The indictment against Mr. Frick and his associates for conspiracy sets forth, among other things, that "said defendants did unlawfully, falsely and maliciously conspire, combine, federate and agree together to depress, lower, lessen and diminish wages, price and compensation of labor of diverse persons employed by the Carnegie Steel Co., limited, to then and there close up the steel manufacturing and to cease work and operations therein, and thereupon to convey and caused to be sent 300 men and upward, armed with guns, etc., to overawe, intimidate and frighten diverse persons in the said township of Mifflin, who were there lately before employed by the said Carnegie Steel Co. to invade the said township of Mifflin and to attack and to shoot off and discharge the said deadly weapons against said persons lately employed by said Carnegie Steel Co."

In regard to the fight on the morning of July 6, the bill says the defendants "did counsel and advise the shooting." Among the conspiracy witnesses is John McLaughlin, burgess of Homestead. The indictment in the riot cases against Frick officials differs little from that in the conspiracy charges.

The grand jury's action did not cause much excitement among the public generally, and the defendants themselves took it quite coolly. The Carnegie officials, however, declined to be interviewed on the subject of the charges. It is not known yet what term the cases will be assigned to.

For the Stewart Killing. DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12.—Detective John Halla, of this city, and Supt. O. Meagher, of the Terre Haute police force, arrested John Kelly and Joseph Kite, of Potomac, about fourteen miles north of this city, for the murder of W. B. Stewart, at Ellsworth, Ind., September 27.

MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB.

Mary had a little lamb
Whose fleece was white as snow;
He followed her to school one day—
The teacher's name was Grover.

So then the teacher kicked him out
For breaking down the rule—
"There's no protection for you here—
This is a free-trade school."

Then Mary dried her weeping eyes
And quickly took her slate,
And said in plainly spoken words,
"November '11 seal your fate."

Well, Mary's lamb, she had a mate—
'Twas feeding there close by,
And from his close proximity
He heard this colloquy:

He laid him down beneath the steps
Till school was out for night;
His red-hot blood was boiling o'er
And spilling for a fight.

When Grover closed the school that day,
Mary, she tinged her sigh
To see the lamb from 'neath the steps
Take Grover on the sly.

He struck him foul below the belt—
A vicious, active thud—
And all his free-trade fallacies
Went floundering in the mud.

Though full of dirt his eyes and nose,
He said, "I plainly see
The way I never saw before,
Wool growers go for me."

It is alleged by those in a position to judge that the Postmaster General of the United States does not believe that the time is yet ripe for a reduction of letter postage to one cent. Such a reduction would probably entail an annual loss of from twenty million to twenty-five million dollars, and it would necessarily be some time before the volume of business would increase sufficiently to make up the deficit.

"Ole Olson" at Court Street.

New York World.—"Ole Olson" at the Court Street Theater last night attracted an audience that filled the house to overflowing from the lower floor to the gallery. "Ole" is played by Ben Hendricks, the well known Buffalo comedian, who is a favorite here. Some of the actor's many personal friends were on hand, and three stands of flowers were presented to him. Mr. Hendricks' impersonation of the Swede is as comical as ever. The cast was satisfactory throughout. Miss Bridget O'Flannigan was a part suited to the abilities of Miss St. George Hussey, and Miss Lottie Williams was sweet and winsome as Genie Dimple.

"Ole" will be at Washington Opera-house Thursday, October 20th.

Struck With a Rock.

Joseph Aschdeacon was struck on the head with a rock late yesterday afternoon and rather seriously hurt.

John Mackey who lives at Washington was the person who threw the rock.

Mike Malone, who was at work on the Maysville and Lexington Turnpike near the top of the hill which leads out of the city says that Mackey was talking to him when Aschdeacon came up and wanted to engage in a game of seven-up. Mackey replied that he did not want to play, whereupon "Mac" became noisy, and finally called Mackey a son of a b—b. Mackey then struck him with a rock and knocked him down.

Deacon managed to get to his home on Fifth street in this city where his wounds were attended to by Dr. Owens.

There is a deep gash on the side of his head which bled profusely. He is rather seriously hurt and this morning is unable to talk. A warrant has been issued for Mackey's arrest.

WITH BOGUS CHECKS.

MANY FIRMS FLEECE BY A YOUNG MAN WITH NUMEROUS NAMES.

He Enters Stores, Makes Purchases, Tenders Checks Supposedly Signed by a Well-known Business Man, Pockets the Balance and Ships.

He was in the city Saturday evening. He made the acquaintance of several business men during his short stay and left town some $30 ahead.

He is said to be a very slick individual. He did not leave his card or future address with any of his hastily formed friends, much to their regret as they would like to have a second interview with him if he could only be found. He is probably working at his trade (?) in some other place where an unsuspecting and accommodating people reside.

His game as worked in Maysville was as follows:

He would go into a store and purchase a small bill of goods, tendering in payment therefor a check payable to his own order and signed presumably by one of our business men. The check in each instance called for several dollars in excess of the amount of the purchase and he pocketed a nice little sum of cash. It is an old trick and it is surprising that so many should be victimized.

So far as learned he worked the game successfully on five of our merchants. There may be others but they have not made the fact known. In all cases the bogus checks bore the forged signature of William H. Ball of the firm of Ball, Mitchell & Co., the well known foundrymen.

His story was that he was an iron molder in their employ and there not being sufficient currency to pay all the hands off on Saturday evening, he had accepted Mr. Ball's check in payment for his week's work.

The body of all the checks and the signature is in the same hand writing. The indorsement across the back, upon close examination, appears to be the same writing, though disguised. The writing is nothing like Mr. Ball's. He was evidently in thorough practice and had probably worked the same scheme many times before.

He made all of his calls between 6 and 7 o'clock Saturday evening. It was not until yesterday when the paper was refused at the First National Bank, whose checks were used, that any wrong was suspected.

It is not known which store was visited first, but the following have reported as having been fleeced:

J. H. Pecor, shoe merchant on Second street, was visited by the stranger who purchased a pair of shoes. He tendered in payment a check payable to the order of James L. Martin and signed by William H. Ball. It called for $10 50. Mr. Pecor knowing Mr. Ball so well and trusting in the fellow's story accepted the check and paid over the balance amounting to $7 50.

He seemed to have a hankering after shoe stores as he also called at W. C. Miner's and H. C. Barkley & Co.'s close together on Second and Sutton streets. He got a pair of shoes at each place. At Miner's he handed out a check for $11 50 payable to William H. Fitch and signed by Mr. Ball. He was made known to Barkley & Co. in the same way by the name of James L. Martin. At the latter place the check called for $11 25. Both firms paid over the balance in cash.

At Hechinger & Co.'s, clothing, he bought an overcoat, paying for it with a $16 50 check and $6 in money. Here the name of James B. Carney was used.

At Joseph Schatzmann's, dealer in china and queensware on Market street, he bought some articles and presented a check of the description for $11 25. He is known to Mr. Schatzmann as James E. Engalls. He did not take the goods with him from this place, but carried away the cash balance.

The crook also visited John Ballenger, jeweler, Second street, and Henry Bertram, shoe merchant on Market, but was unsuccessful in his attempts to swindle.

He is described as being about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches in height and weighs about 125 pounds. He has light eyes, hair and mustache and is about 25 years old.

No one had ever seen him before and it is most likely his first and will probably be his last visit to Maysville.

The Sand Bar Shooting.

C. S. Cropper, the Lewis county man who was shot in the foot and robbed on the sand bar across the river night before last, is still at the Central Hotel. He is suffering from the wound but is not considered seriously hurt.

"Red" Costello and Dennis Crow have been arrested for the deed and are now in jail. Cropper recognized Costello as the one who did the shooting and also says Crow was along.

A man named Howell and one named Miller were along but claim to have had nothing to do with the crime.

A CHILD of John Smith fell from a horse yesterday and had his arm severely fractured. Dr. Samuel was called to attend to the broken member.

COMMON WAGON.

Lord Tennyson's Remains Transported in a Small Cart.

The Poet Had Often Expressed His Aversion for Hearse.

Among the Pall-Bearers are Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, American Minister, Represented by His Secretary Lord Salisbury, and Sir James Paget.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Lord Salisbury will be one of the pall-bearers at Lord Tennyson's funeral in Westminster Wednesday. The official list of the pall-bearers was published Tuesday morning. It is headed with the name of Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, American minister, with the explanation that Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American legation, will represent him. The list includes besides Lord Salisbury, Very Rev. Henry Montague Butler and Sir James Paget.

When living, Lord Tennyson often expressed his aversion for hearses, and Tuesday, when his body was removed from Aldworth, deference was paid to what was known to have been his feelings in regard to them. When the time arrived to transfer the remains the coffin was carried from the house by old servants, and placed in a small cart waiting to receive it.

The relatives then formed in procession behind the cart and started for Haslemere station. Their journey was a slow one, and the whole distance was made on foot by the mourners. Nothing more simple and unostentatious could have been conceived. As the cortege moved along the men who were met removed their hats, and the women bowed their heads until the mournful procession had passed. Lady Tennyson and other members of Lord Tennyson's family accompanied the body. Hallam Tennyson returned to Haslemere after seeing the coffin safely placed in the railway van.

Owing to the ignorance of the public as to the time when the train bearing the poet's body would arrive in London, only a few persons were gathered in the Waterloo station when the cars rolled in, and thus was avoided the crush which would undoubtedly have prevailed had the exact hour of the arrival been known.

The coffin was at once removed from the car, and without ostentation of any kind was placed on an ordinary van, and in this homely conveyance was quietly borne to Westminster Abbey, its last resting place.

The people on the streets traversed by the van did not become aware of the fact that Tennyson's body was being carried to the abbey until the curiosity of a number of persons were aroused by the van halting en route in order that the union jack might be spread over the coffin. Word was then quickly passed that the laureate's remains had arrived. The intelligence spread rapidly, and in a short time the small group whose attention was first attracted had become greatly augmented, and the crowd continued to gain fresh additions throughout the journey. The crowd acted in an orderly manner, and showed the respect and love which the public held for the poet by forming a guard of honor and escorting the van at a respectful distance until the abbey had been reached.

A large number of persons had gathered about the entrance to the Abbey, and it was with difficulty that the policemen detailed for duty there succeeded in forming a passage for those selected to carry the coffin from the van to St. Faith's chapel, where the body will remain until the funeral takes place. The people stood in silence while the transfer was made, and nearly every man in throng reverently uncovered his head as the coffin was borne along.

There was a great crush for admission to the Abbey, but only a few privileged persons were permitted to enter. The crowd remained about the entrance long after the body had been deposited in the chapel, and much regret was expressed at the death of the poet.

Canon Duckworth and others of the clergy attached to Westminster Abbey received the mourners, and gave directions for the arrangement of the coffin.

Mrs. Hallam Tennyson, who was among the members of the family who accompanied the body from Haslemere, placed a handsome floral wreath on the coffin when it had been deposited in the chapel.

Canon Duckworth then offered a brief prayer, and the simple ceremony was ended.

Columbian Musical Festival.

New York, Oct. 12.—Grover Cleveland and wife were among the distinguished audience gathered in the Seventh Regiment armory Tuesday night, to enjoy the Columbian Musical festival, prepared under the auspices of the United German-American singing societies. The singers, over two thousand in number, occupied an improvised gallery and stage erected at the Park avenue side of the building, and presented a sea of faces that resembled an army drawn up in battle array on a hillside.

A Colored Bishop's Advice.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Bishop John M. Brown, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, is out in an open letter appealing to members of his church to either vote for Grover Cleveland or stay away from the polls. He says that he has changed his politics because his race has nothing to hope for in the republican party.

Chicago Railway Wreck.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—The finance committee of the board of sanitary trustees Tuesday decided to sell $2,000,000 worth of bonds to Black & Co., of New York, at a premium of
